Gleichen Farmers Union Meeting

Supplied by Secretary Trego.
A special meeting of the U.F.A. was held in the sample rooms of the Palace Hotel, Gleichen, May 31st for the purpose of completing the organization of The Alberta Farmers Co-operative Elevator Co. The Elevator Act was read by the secretary and all points thoroughly discussed and a large number of shares were signed for by those present, but as all those who had signed the original list were not present it was decided to leave the matter over to the regular meeting, Saturday June 7th.

The matter of ordering binder twine was then taken up and M. Bollinger was appointed as a committee to receive orders and secure and distribute the twine when it arrives.

At the regular monthly meeting held Saturday, June 7th, the elevator business was the first taken up and the majority of the required stock was subscribed and paid for.

As the plan is to have a warehouse in connection with each elevator for the handling of merchandise for the members and as there will be at least 20 such elevators and warehouses, besides the large distributing warehouse and storage elevator to be erected in Calgary, by the farmers will be in a position to do their buying most advantageously.

As the Combined Irrigation Committee are to hold a meeting in Calgary the coming week it was decided to hold an adjourned meeting Saturday, June 14th, to hear the report of the Irrigation Committee and complete the elevator business and to complete some other business which could not be completed for lack of time.

Calgary Exhibition

Exhibitors from Gleichen district are preparing their entries for the Calgary fair, which must be sent in before the end of the week. It is expected that we will be well represented among those who exhibit and also by those who will patronize the big western holiday. For those who go for entertainment there will be a big list of free attractions, splendid music, fast races, gorgeous fireworks and a midway that will be a long trail of novelty and amusement. Among the free attractions which will be presented every afternoon and evening there will be two diving horses plunging from a lofty tower with a lady rider into a tank of water; the Ishiwaro brothers, oriental acrobats and tumblers; Ramona Ortiz, one of the cleverest lady slack wire performers on the continent; the Zerckas and the Bicketts, who do some wonderful work on the bars and trapeze; 91st Highlanders band from Hamilton; Titus grand opera quartette, and a dozen other high class attractions, including fireworks. Particulars regarding rates can be given by our local agent.

It is pleasing to state that Chief Chas. Marshall is improving at the hour of going to press. For several days it was feared he would not recover and once the doctor gave up hopes of his recovery, but by attentive nursing it would seem his chances of complete recovery are now most hopeful.

Chief Roberts captured a couple of women at the depot Friday night as they were about to leave town, who pleading guilty next morning to immoral habits Magistrate Vigar fined them each $15 and several men a similar amount.

It has been very warm during the past few days.

Methodist Musicales

The members of the Methodist Church Ladies' Aid are to be heartily congratulated on their most successful musicale, which was held on Wednesday last, for although their socials are always of a high order, they undoubtedly surpassed all their previous efforts on this occasion. It is to be regretted that the attendance was not larger but it would seem that in discriminating between the different attractions during the week some of the public made a grave miscalculation in their judgment of what would be worthy of their patronage. However for those present a treat both musical and otherwise was provided and fully enjoyed by all. During the evening a program, both varied and select, was rendered by the choir and the following ladies and gentlemen, individually, Miss Larkin, Miss Davis, Miss J. Burne, Mrs. McEwen, and Messrs. R. A. Brown, Dorian and Eason while the accompaniments were played in his usual accomplished manner by Mr. Whiteley. A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Tomorrow—Friday evening—a dance is to be given at Cluny by Mr. J. M. Telford. It is expected a big crowd will be present and a good night's dancing is assured.

Why it was, Joan could not have told her, but now a quick fear overcame her. She hesitated for a moment, struggling against the panic fast rising in her mind, and she called herself ridiculous, since what danger could there be to Dora in her running up a flight of stairs and knocking at a door? But all the same, this impression of some terrible danger that she had grown stronger and stronger in her mind, and she said to herself that it had been like watching Dora enter a tomb to see her pass through that ancient and gloomy doorway. Yielding to her impulse she entered, too, and groping her way softly down the dark passage, she came to where the stairs rose before her to the darkness above.

At the foot of them she hesitated and it seemed to her she heard something—she knew not what—it was like a silent scuffling—a silent, deadly scuffling in the dark. Her panic increased, and she had a wild desire to rush back and run screaming for help. But she remembered how empty and quiet and deserted the street had seemed, and she was aware somehow of an impression that each moment was of the utmost importance. At the top of her speed she ran up the stairs, and when she was nearly at the summit a wild scream rang out, startling and terrible beyond words as it issued so unexpectedly from that thick darkness.

Silence her, said a voice low and fierce; and as Joan came another step nearer, she could just distinguish Dora struggling wildly in the arms of two men, one of whom was pressing his hand upon her mouth while they both seemed to be trying to lift or pull her in one direction.

But now Joan's voice rose in one long loud cry for help that echoed through the silent building, and seemed to issue as a very stream of clamour out into the deserted street beneath. At the same time, while still screaming without ceasing, she caught the nearest of Dora's assailants round the neck and clung to him desperately in a grip so strangling that, to free himself, he was forced to free Dora, who at once began to scream again.

With a furious oath, the man pushed Joan from him with such force that she fell on her knees at the head of the stairs.

Now, I'll kill you, he said, and a bare knife flashed in his hand.

Joan, crouching on her knees, was conscious of no fear, but only that she had to crouch there and wait, and to do this required from her so immense an effort, that she ceased her loud cries with which she had been filling the night. Dora also fell silent, bewildered to find herself suddenly free, for the second man had also left hold of her, so that in place of the clamor and tumult of the moment before there was now an intense silence broken only by the slum-ming of a door in the darkness near by.

It seemed this silence or this sound of the closing door startled the man who stood with his knife over Joan, for he paused and then stooping nearer he appeared to recognize Joan.

Miss Joan, he exclaimed, and his knife fell clattering from his hand.

Then Dora began to scream again, and Joan's assailant leaped backwards and with the agility of a cat swung himself away and down the stairs, and they heard how he raced down the dark passage into the street.

Stop him! Stop him! screamed Dora wildly. He has my watch; and she ran after him!

But by the time she reached the door the fugitive had disappeared, rushing round a corner of the street just as a man in a motor-car drove round it in the other direction. Seeing the lights of his car, Dora cried out again and he brought the car to a standstill near her and jumped down to the pavement.

Why, Miss Rose? he exclaimed, what's the matter?

Oh, Mr. Thorold, isn't it you? she cried. Oh, why didn't you stop him?

Oh, oh!

That man running? Thorold asked. It was only Mayne's valet, Monday.

What has happened? Has he been doing anything?

Oh, I don't know, Dora answered, sobbing and trembling so that she had to cling to the doorpost for support.

Oh, he tried to murder us, and he has stolen my watch.

Good heavens! exclaimed Thorold, amazed and bewildered and making a step to follow Monday who was now far enough away; to murder you? But where is Mayne?

Dora, cried Joan from within, call for help, for help. There's one of them here somewhere still, for I heard a door shut.

Who is that? asked Thorold quickly, and with a certain agitation for which he could not account. Who is that? he repeated a second time.

That is Joan, who saved me, Dora answered. Joan, Joan, and as Joan came down the dark passage and put from the darkness of the doorway into the light outside, Dora said again, Mr. Thorold, this is Joan Durand, who saved me.

They gave each other a quick glance. Joan found herself blushing and Thorold mechanically raised his hat.

But his eyes were burning and his mouth was set like iron and his heart throbbed painfully; and thus it was that there met Joan Durand and Edward Thorold, her enemy, who sought for her, having sworn vengeance against her.

CHAPTER X

A Man's Hate—A Man's Love

For a long minute these two remained looking at each other with a profound and singular attention, each as it were absorbed by the other, each conscious of the same impression that both experienced, though neither understood it a feeling, as it were, that once before they had known each other, once before had been together, and that now after long separation, they had met again. With an instinctive recognition. Then Thorold put up his hand to his forehead with a gesture for him most curiously weak and undecided, and Joan suddenly aware that she was blushing, looked hastily away.

You are not hurt, are you? she said vaguely to Dora.

Your watch—have you lost your watch? Thorold muttered for the sake of saying something.

Why, Dora exclaimed, even in her present distressed state, struck by their strange looks at each other?

Oh, no, no, answered Joan; and she was conscious of a kind of fear of this man who looked at her so ardently, and with such a manner of suggesting some claim upon her that she resented the more strongly for her odd sensation that he had a right to make this claim.

But Thorold knew only that it was as if a veil had been withdrawn from before his eyes, illuminating all his being with a great and pure light that dazzled him and made him blind till he knew it not from darkness.

Have we met? he repeated Dora's question vaguely, and with the shock of a huge bewilderment it rushed in upon him that this was the original of the photograph he had found in his brother's hand—the woman he had sworn to destroy—now he had found her. But you—he stammered, you are—oh, impossible, he said as her clear, deep eyes once more met his.

But Joan seemed to have recovered her sense of the present; and she flung her arms round Dora to support her, who was still trembling and shaking violently and clinging to the doorpost with her hands.

Why do you not go up there?—why do you not get a policeman? she cried angrily to Thorold. One of them is up there—I heard a door slam—oh, do something, she exclaimed with impatience, for Thorold, still stood stock still, possessed by an amazement of deep fear.

Turning from him as if in anger at his immobility, Joan began to soothe and comfort Dora who clung to her trembling and sobbing. Joan would have liked to tremble and sob herself but Dora so plainly needed her attention she was forced to fight her own agitation down.

There had been something of contempt in the way in which she had turned from him, but Thorold did not seem to notice it. He stood for a moment watching her and then went slowly through the doorway into the dark passage. His imagination had many times presented to him the circumstances under which he would meet his brother's murderer, but he had never figured them in his mind as they had turned out in reality—he supposed it must be the extremity of his hate and loathing that distressed him with such a poignancy of emotion.

Hardly conscious of what he was doing, Thorold ascended heavily the stairs. Some one—he knew not who—had said one of Dora's assailants still lurked here. His movements became brisker, more energetic, life searched rapidly, he ran up the stairs and examined each floor, he felt every door, and found all were securely locked.

It came to him like a message of fire written across the surrounding blackness that a moment ago he had been face to face with Frank's murderer—it no longer seemed strange to him that he had been so torn and shaken at the sight of her, that he had been like a man stupefied and foolish.

A dark rage grew in him, a grim heat of anger against her whom he believed to have been responsible for the cutting off of that bright young life.

He said to himself that beyond doubt the deep emotion that had swept over him on seeing Joan and that had rendered him so dumb and motionless was now within his grasp.

It is hate I feel, he told himself, and added, for he was still bewildered, but I did not know hate made one feel like this.

NERVOUS DISEASES
IN THE SPRING

Cured By Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve troubles are at their worst, and that, taken more than any other time, a blood-making nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hard to Prove

Is there a tinge of jealousy in Miss Genee's criticism of Isadore Duncan's dancing?

It is very safe, she observes, to revive the dances of 2,000 years ago. Certainly no one is going to be able to prove those weren't the dances.

The Tomato

A doctor ascribes to the tomato the following important medicinal properties:—

First, that the tomato is one of the most powerful cleansers of the liver and other organs; where calomel was generally used as an aperient, tomatoes may be substituted. The tomato is probably one of the most effective and least harmful remedial agents known.

Second, that a chemical extract may be obtained from it that will supersede the use of calomel in the cure of disease.

Third, that it has been successfully used in cases of diarrhoea.

Fourth, that when used as an article of diet, it is almost a sovereign remedy for dyspepsia and indigestion.

Fifth, that it should be constantly used, either cooked, raw or in the form of catsup.

A negro porter in a barber shop made a speech one night at his colored men's club. It was quite an effort creating a sensation among his brothers on account of the number of big words it contained.

His employer heard of it, and the next day began twitting him when he saw him absorbed in a dictionary.

What are you doing, Sam? he asked. Looking up some more big words for another speech?

No sah, he replied. 'Tain't that. Ah's jes' translatin' the speech Ah made las' night.

A musical acquaintance of ours (whose name we refrain from giving) declares it his opinion, that having to listen to the whole of a great composer's greatest work (which work and which composer shall be likewise nameless) is equivalent to two (years) hard labour.

Spare the children from suffering from worms by using Miller's Worm Powders, the most effective vermifuge that can be got with which to combat these insidious foes of the young and helpless. There is nothing that excels this preparation as a worm destroyer, and when its qualities become known in a household no other will be used. The medicine acts by itself, requiring no purgative to assist it, and so thoroughly that nothing more is desired.

When I was running a room of my own, said a billiard player, the chalk disappeared at a tremendous rate, and I said to my helper: Keep a better eye on the chalk, Jim. I'm no millionaire. I know the gents will pocket the chalk, Jim said, but they're regular customers. I guess you wouldn't want me to offend 'em, would you? Well, no, said I, I would not. You might give them a gentle hint, though. Use your diplomacy, Jim. I found out later, used his diplomacy that night. He walked up to one of my best patrons, who had just pocketed a piece of chalk, and he said: You are in the milk business, ain't you, sir? Yes. Why? the patron asked. I thought so, said Jim. The boss likes enterprise, and he told me to tell you that if you wanted a bucket of water now and then you could have one and welcome.

A teacher had been telling her class of boys that recently worms had become so numerous that they destroyed the crops, and it was necessary to import English sparrows to exterminate them. The sparrows multiplied very fast and were gradually driving away our native birds.

Johnny was apparently inattentive, and the teacher, thinking to catch him napping, said:

Johnny, which is worse, to have worms or sparrows?

Johnny hesitated a moment and then replied:

Please, I never had the sparrows.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson was once called upon by a young matron who had read his article on "Fat and its Pollies" in a popular magazine, and wanted him to help her get rid of some of her superfluous fat. After a few questions he handed the lady a diet list, telling her to come back in two weeks. The good doctor's contemplation came so severely he imagined when he saw his patient again. She weighed twenty pounds more. He was puzzled. His list contained no sweets of any kind, nor any fat products, yet it was putting flesh on at an enormous rate.

You are sure that you ate the things on the list, the doctor questioned severely.

Yes, doctor, was the firm answer.

What else did you eat? as a sudden inspiration seized him.

Why, nothing but my regular meals was the indignant answer.

Slight Mistake

A train on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad stopped for lunch, ice and water, according to a story told at an Ohio banquet by Senator Burton, and in a few minutes the through passengers were walking up and down the station platform to take out the links. One of the passengers, an elderly tourist, stood breathing the rarified atmosphere, and delightedly gazing at the snow-capped mountains.

Isn't this invigorating, he remarked to a man standing near.

No, sir, replied the man, who happened to be a native filled with civic pride this is Grand Junction.

A baker, who had recovered from a serious illness, requested his doctor to make out his attendance bill, and he added: Try and make it as light as possible, doctor. Oh, replied the witty medic: that's what you say to your foreman, Mr. Baker, but it is not the way I make my bread.

Since you think we made a mistake in becoming engaged, Gloriana, said the young man, with tears in his voice I submit to your decision! But you will give me a goodbye kiss, will you not?

Yes.

He clasped her to his bosom in a close embrace and planted a passionate, lingering kiss upon her lips.

Perhaps, Gloriana, she murmured, gently, we are making a mistake to separate. If you like—we will—let matters remain as they are—a while longer.

The Yellowhead Tie & Lumber Syndicate has just completed an order of 100,000 ties for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for use on its various uncompleted lines; having kept a force of 300 men at work all winter in order to complete the contract on time.

Ask for Minard's and take no other

A recent despatch from Prince Rupert received at Grand Trunk Pacific headquarters in Montreal reports that 5,000 poles for the use on the telegraph lines along the Panama Canal, are to be cut from Graham Island. This is the first of the Graham Island timber that has found a market and may presage the development of an important industry as experts are agreed that nowhere else could trees be found more adaptable to the manufacture of poles in general and flag-staffs in particular. Some of the timber has not a branch for 100 feet up, while poles 6 inches at the butt and tapering to 4 inches at from 60 to 100 feet, can be cut out in any quantity.

A country draper carefully examined the samples of dress material while the traveller waited. A customer came, the draper waited on him, then went back to examine the samples. Another customer, and more examination; still another customer, and as the draper began again he said: Are these samples in fashion? They were, replied the discouraged traveller, when you began to look at them.

A Social Problem

The curate of a large and fashionable church was endeavoring to teach the significance of white to a Sunday school class.

Why, said he, does a bride invariably desire to be clothed in white at her marriage? As no one answered he explained.

White, said he, stands for joy, and the wedding-day is the most joyous of a woman's life.

A small boy queried: Why do the men all wear black?

The Oil of the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

The self-made man was in a caustic mood. These schools, yer know, give a boy no practical knowledge. See what I mean? Now, my son, he is supposed to be learning Greek and Latin and Algebra. And the other day I asked him to tell me the Algebra for fried fish and chips, and he couldn't.

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk.

The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.

For weak stomachs and the indigestion or dyspepsia resulting, and the multitude of diseases following therefrom, no medicine can be more adaptable as

There is every indication that this will be the busiest season that the Fraser River has ever witnessed since Fraser went down it with his Indians in 1820, and particularly that section lying between mile 53 B.C. on the Grand Trunk Pacific and Prince George, as there are about 1,000 scows and an imposing fleet of gasolene launches and steamboats awaiting the arrival of open water to transfer freight from the Grand Trunk Pacific head of steel to Prince George. The ice is breaking up but it will be another fortnight yet, according to present estimates, before it is all out. The distance from Mile 53 to the Fort by water route is approximately 250 miles and the rocks in the canyon were blown out with dynamite during the past winter so that the boats can now be put through without the necessity of any portage.

AN OLD SETTLER FINDS QUICK RELIEF

CHAS. MARSHALL CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mrs. Marshall Tells How Her Husband Suffered, and of His Speedy Recovery When He Used the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Parkinson, Algoma, Ont. (Special)—Living far from towns and with doctors not within easy reach, many of the settlers have found Dodd's Kidney Pills an inestimable blessing. One of these is Mr. Charles Marshall, Sr., whose recovery from a severe case of kidney disease has recently been the cause of much satisfaction to his family and friends.

"My husband was suffering very much with his back and legs," Mrs. Marshall says, speaking of her husband's cure. "He went to see the doctor, and he told him he had urinary trouble, but he did not seem to get any better."

"Then I sent for some Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since taking them, he has no more pain in his back and legs, and his other troubles are all gone. I am indeed thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for my husband, and I hope other sufferers from kidney disease will benefit by his experience, and use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Urinary troubles are caused by diseased kidneys. So are backache, rheumatism, lumbago, and heart disease. The natural remedy is to cure the kidneys by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Elaborate preparations are being made by Mr. W. J. Quinlan, District Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Winnipeg for the annual nine day's excursion organized by the business men of that city. This includes a round up of buffalo, deer, moose, elk, and antelope at Buffalo Park, Wainwright, by Mr. Hermy, the Chief Superintendent of Parks, and a frontier celebration by the Peace River Indians at Athabasca Landing, who will demonstrate their national dances and give an exhibition of the furs and other natural resources of the Hudson's Bay District. Arrangements have also been completed for a trout fishing expedition at Fitzhugh on the main line of the G.T.P. in the heart of the Rocky Mountains.

Playing Safe
An old woman who persisted in bowing during church service whenever the name of Satan was mentioned, was reprimanded by the minister for so unseemly an habit. The reproof had, however, no effect, and the minister asked her finally, in exasperation, why she thought it necessary to bow.
Well, she replied, civility costs nothing and you never know what will happen.

In the Theatre Royal, Dublin, when the Italian company came to play "Faust," the actor who took the part of Mephistopheles neglected to try the trap door by which he was supposed to descend into the infernal regions. His bulk was too large for the opening and at the supreme moment he discovered that he could not get down above the waist. To lighten the awkwardness of the situation and to relieve the strained feelings of the audience, one of the boys in the gallery in a rich Irish brogue, exclaimed: Hurrah! the place is full.

Judging by Appearances

A gentleman was on a motoring tour, when his car broke down near a small village. It was late in the evening, so he decided to put up for the night at the only inn the village possessed. After a rather scrappy supper he was shown up to his bedroom, but soon after the landlord had come downstairs again his guest leaned over the balustrade and called: Landlord, landlord! Do you think I'm going to clean my own boots?

What d'ye mean, grumbled the landlord.
What have you put a polishing pad on my bed for? demanded the guest.
The landlord came upstairs to look. Polishing pad, he snapped, that's not a polishing pad. That's the pillow!

A Reminder

A romantically inclined young lady of no great beauty, tired of life because no man came to woo her, threw herself into the river. But a swimmer passing near hastened to the bank and plunged in after her. Succeeding in rescuing her, he carried her home insensible to her parents. When the girl came to herself she declared that she wished to marry the hero who had risked his life on her behalf. That's impossible! exclaimed her father.

Why? she asked. Is he already married?
No, answered father.
Isn't he respectable, then?
He, my dear, he happens to be a very fine—Newfoundland dog!

Countless have been the cures worked by Holloway's Corn Cure. It has a power of its own not found in other preparations.

The legislature of a western state contains this year several women members. At a recent banquet they were invited to speak, but all with one accord began to make excuses, and one of the men was asked to represent them. He accepted, saying that he was willing to do so, so far as in him lay, but that his case was similar to that of a naughty little girl who was told that if she didn't behave she would be shut up in the chicken coop.

You can shut me up in the chicken coop if you want to, replied she, but I ain't going to lay any eggs.

It had been a distressingly hot day. Riley returned home thoroughly exhausted after a hard day's work and found his better half peevish and also tired out after putting the greater part of the day in at the wash tub. She was, however, at the time he entered, seated, fanning herself vigorously.

Tired and Weak Nerves Exhausted

The feelings of fatigue and languor which overcome so many people at this season of the year tell of the exhausted condition of the nerves. It is impossible to keep up the action of the heart and the vitality of the nerves when the blood is thin and watery, and this is why nearly everybody needs tonic treatment in the spring. Some of the symptoms are: restlessness, purposeless activity, insomnia, absent-mindedness, tired gait, lack of ambition and enthusiasm, headache and neuragic pains, dyspepsia, and feelings of languor and depression. Stomachy or nervous system, or both, as does also the skin, moustache, or modern life, whether in the business or social world. More and more men and women are obliged to seek the assistance of such concentrated foods as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore vitality to the tired and worn-out nerves. Such treatment is necessary, because diseases of the nerves do not right themselves. As nerve force runs low the digestive system fails to extract the necessary nutrition from the food. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies in condensed form the ingredients required, and restores health. A little patience is necessary in treating diseases of the nerves, and rest helps to restore strength. You can be sure - nothing beneficial results when you use

The Cost of Living

The Calgary Herald published in its news columns a few weeks ago a comparison of prices paid for staple groceries in Calgary in 1905, 1910 and 1913. The figures showed that in these commodities prices have actually slightly decreased. This may come as something in the nature of a surprise to many who believe that, with the present high cost of living, everything has gone up proportionately.

The decrease shown, however, does not apply to butter, ham and bacon, articles which though sold in grocers' stores do not exactly come under the heading of groceries. These have risen the last eight years considerably in price, butter, 100 per cent. and ham and bacon 25 per cent. Here the information is valuable in that one reason for the increased cost of living is traced and that is under production on the farm to supply the demands made. Meat prices, it may safely be said, have risen considerably in the last decade, and here again the same cause applies.

All investigations into reasons which underlie the present high rate to which living has reached are well advised if they succeed in providing the necessary remedies. When communities and authorities become alive to the nature of things as they exist at present, there is at least some hope that these will become instituted. But it is a matter that will need much time in the process.

Our Calgary namesake observes that the inquiries into the high cost of living may lead us into paths unthought of when the enquiry commenced. The chief reasons for the present high cost it puts down to rents, cost of apparel and fuel bills. The first two items, we may say, fall under what some people call the cost of high living. But the prices of such necessities as butter, meat and bacon are undoubtedly factors in the high cost of living we are at present experiencing. They are matters which press on all alike.—Lethbridge Herald.

The Winnipeg Free Press published the "write-up" promised of Gleichen last December and four fair cuts on May 31st. The particulars were gathered at that time, are now very ancient and the figures a long way from correct. However the boost will do no harm and was evidently done with the best of intentions.

The premier of the Australian state of Victoria at a banquet in London, boasted of the indebtedness of his state. It has an area of less than one third of the province of Alberta and a population less than three times as great. But it has a debt twenty-two times as large as that of Alberta. But Victoria's investments are mostly revenue producing. Railways absorb $220,000,000, water supply works $15,000,000, estates for closer settlement, $18,800,000, coal mines $715,000.

A quiet wedding took place on Tuesday evening last, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ferguson, when Rev. Canon Stocken united in marriage, before starting for their distant home in Colorado, Mr. Oatney and Miss Kindon. The many friends of the young couple join in wishing them every happiness.

GET YOUR CANADIAN HOME FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

By-Law No. 2

A By-Law of the Rural Municipality of Marquis No. 157 providing for Municipal Pounds and the regulation of same.

The Council of the Rural Municipality of Marquis No. 157 enacts as follows:

1. That the following be and are hereby established as Public Pounds for the Rural Municipality of Marquis No. 157.

(a) No. 1 shall be situated on the ..... Quarter of Section ..... in Township ..... and Range ..... west of the ..... Meridian, known as the ..... farm.

(b) No. 2 shall be situated on Lots ..... in Block ..... in the hamlet of ..... at the premises commonly known as the ..... stables.

(c) No. 3 etc.

2. That there shall be a Poundkeeper for each Pound whose remuneration shall be such fees and charges as he shall be entitled to under the tariff prescribed by the Minister.

3. That said Pounds shall be for the impounding of animals at large on trespassing contrary to the provisions of any By-Law of the Rural Municipality of Marquis No. 157, which said impounding may be done by any person.

4. Whenever any animal is impounded it shall be the duty of the Poundkeeper to detain the same until the owner or owners thereof shall have paid the charges and fees payable to the Poundkeeper as set out in the tariff as prescribed by the Minister and the amount of damages if any claimed for the trespass.

5. If a Poundkeeper impounds or assists or incites any person to impound any animal in any Municipality unless such animal was an estray or was trespassing upon the Poundkeeper's own land, he shall, in addition to any civil liability which he may incur by reason thereof be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding $100.

6. Every Poundkeeper shall at his own cost keep the Pound to which he is appointed, clean and in good repair and shall supply the animals impounded therein with sufficient and wholesome sustenance and provide for them such shelter as is commonly provided at the time for animals of similar age and class in the vicinity and the Poundkeeper may send such animals out of his Pound at fit times and to fit places for grazing and watering and every Poundkeeper shall be responsible to the owner of any impounded animal for all loss or damage occasioned by any act or negligence of himself or his agent; in no case is an open wire corral to be regarded as a suitable pound.

7. If the owner of any impounded animal is known to the Poundkeeper as the owner of such animal the Poundkeeper shall forthwith deliver at or mail by registered post to the address of such owner, a notice in the form hereinafter provided.

(b) In case such owner is not known or such owner or person notified shall not within ten days after the posting of such notice appear at the pound and release the animal so impounded by the payment of the lawful fees, mileage rates and claim for damage, the Poundkeeper shall cause to be inserted once each week for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper circulating in the vicinity of the pound a notice in the form hereinafter provided:

Notice is hereby given under Section 310 of the Rural Municipality Act that (description of animal impounded giving registered brands, if any, marks and points) was impounded in the pound kept by the undersigned on (the description of quarter section or other place where pound is located) ..... day of ..... 1913.

(Signature of poundkeeper)

8. Every Poundkeeper shall without extra charge in addition to any copies of any notice which he may be required under the act to post or deliver, post a copy of every such notice in a conspicuous place at his pound, and in the nearest post office and shall keep and maintain such notice at this pound during the whole of such time such notice may refer to.

9. When any animal shall not have been released from the pound within twenty days after the notice has been inserted for at least the last time in a newspaper as in Section 210 of the Rural Municipality Act mentioned the said animal shall be sold by public auction after such notice of such sale shall have been posted for eight days in three conspicuous places in the Municipality, one of which shall be the post office nearest the pound, and at such sale the Poundkeeper shall be the auctioneer, and such sale shall be held at the pound or at such other place as may be designated by the By-Law of the Municipality and shall commence at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon and the Poundkeeper shall not either in person or by his agent purchase any animal at such sale or have any interest of any kind in any animal so purchased.

10. If more than one animal is impounded and the owner thereof is known, the Poundkeeper shall only sell sufficient of such animals to satisfy the claims for damages, expenses and fees chargeable against the animals and the owner of the animals shall be entitled to those remaining unsold.

(b) If the owner of the animals is unknown the Poundkeeper shall sell all the animals impounded.

(c) The Poundkeeper shall immediately after such sale send to the Treasurer a description of the animal sold, the date of sale and the amount realized and the disposition thereof.

11. No Poundkeeper making a sale under the provisions of the Rural Municipality Act and of this By-Law shall be liable to a penalty for selling without a license as an auctioneer.

12. The proceeds of the sale of any impounded animal sold under the provisions of this Act shall be applicable in payment:

(a) Of any costs and charges attending such sale,
(b) Of all sustenance fees.

(c) To the impounder of such animal of the amount due to him for mileage charges and for damage done and the residue, if any, shall be paid to the owner of such animal, or if not claimed at the time of sale by any person entitled thereto, to the Treasurer of the Municipality.

13. The owner of any impounded animal may give notice in writing to the Poundkeeper that he intends to complain to the Justice of the Peace against the person impounding such animal and upon receiving such notice and upon deposit with the Poundkeeper of the amount claimed for damages together with the pound or other authorized fees and charges, the Poundkeeper shall release such animal and shall retain such amount subject to the order of a Justice of the Peace as hereinafter provided.

Such complaint may be upon any one of the following grounds:

(a) That the impounding was illegal, or
(b) That the damages claimed are excessive, or
(c) That the impounding was illegal but that in any event the damages are excessive.

But the Justice shall not enquire into any complaint notice of which has not been given.

14. Within ten days after giving the notice in the last preceding section mentioned, the owner may lodge his complaint, as set forth in the notice with a Justice of the Peace, who thereupon shall institute the like proceedings as are authorized under the Criminal Code for the payment of money, and upon hearing the complaint the Justice may determine the matter of such complaint, and if the Justice

(1) Adjudges that the animal was illegally impounded as claimed; the Justice shall order the said animal (if not released) to be restored to the owner, or if released the money deposited with the Poundkeeper to be repaid, and in either event the Justice shall order the impounder to pay the cost of the proceedings and all fees to which the Poundkeeper is lawfully entitled or

(2) Finds on a complaint as laid in Clause B of the last preceding paragraph, the amount of damages which the impounder has sustained to be less than claimed, the Justice shall order the excess and the owner's costs of the proceedings to be paid to the owner by the Poundkeeper out of the moneys paid in by the owner, and if no money has been paid in by the owner, the Justice shall order the payment of the amount of such damages so fixed less the costs of the proceedings, and in default of such payment, the animal impounded shall be sold and the proceeds applied as hereinafter directed by this By-Law, or

(3) Adjudges that the animal impounded was legally impounded, or that the amount of damage sustained was not less than the amount claimed by the impounder, then the Justice shall make an order for the payment forthwith of the amount claimed and all pound and other authorized fees together with costs of such proceedings, and in default of such payment the animal impounded shall be sold and the proceeds applied as hereinafter directed by this By-Law.

(4) Finds on a complaint laid as in Clause C of the last preceding paragraph that the animal was legally impounded but the damages sustained by the impounder were less than claimed, the Justice shall make an order as directed by paragraph two thereof but shall not allow costs to either party and proceedings shall be taken on any such other orders as provided in such paragraph.

15. Nothing contained in this By-Law shall deprive the owner of any animal impounded of any action, remedy or right that he may have at common law or otherwise by reason of the same being unlawfully seized, detained or impounded.

16. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the owner of any lands trespassed upon or of any property destroyed from waiving rights created by this By-Law and bringing his action in any competent Court in consequence of any trespass.

17. Any person convicted of a breach of this By-Law shall be liable to the penalties imposed by the By-Law providing for the enforcement of the By-Laws of the Municipality.

DONE AND PASSED in Council assembled at ..... A.D. .... day of ..... 1913.

The Irrigation Belt

The Dominion Parliament has set aside $40,000 for an investigation of the irrigation belt. Some of the farmers in the district have expressed dissatisfaction with conditions there and have asked for a re-survey of the district and it is in response to their application that the government has taken action. The government has acted wisely. The dissatisfaction seems to be fairly well organized and it is not to the advantage of the country, or any interested therein, that it should continue. The C. P. R. says that the dissatisfaction is confined to a small number of dissatisfied people who are acting because of unworthy motives and personal reasons. This investigation should show if such a statement is correct. The farmers maintain that their grievances are well founded. The investigation should establish that. Heretofore the public has not known just what to believe. The dispute is more or less technical and few people are able to form an intelligent opinion upon the merits of it.

The investigation must be a thorough one. It should be a full and careful enquiry into all the grievances of the farmers. It should not be confined to the engineering problems but should be an inquiry into the entire irrigation question. It should consider the question of climate, soil and water and everything should be complete and thorough.—Albertan.

CHANGING THE SUBJECT

A preacher at the close of one of his sermons said: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up." Presently every man, woman and child with one exception rose to their feet.

The preacher seated them and said, "Now every man not paying his debts stand up." The exception, a care worn, hungry looking individual, clothed in his last summer suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position.

"How is it, my friend," asked the minister, "you are the only man not to meet his obligations?" "I run a newspaper," he answered, meekly, "and the brethren here, who stood up are my subscribers, and—"

"Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.

Is it my lead? asked the first; Well, of all hands, I've the worst. Dear me! If I only knew What you had! chirps number two. Now, I can't say on the whole, But this play accords with Poise; But it is the best I have. Kate exclaims, so mild and suave; Comes the chorus from all four: What are trumps?

Miss Polly Dunn, is that your ace?—Oh, say, have you seen the lace? Selling now at Brown and Davis?—I forgot Kate had no hearts—And the most exquisite shade—Gracious, Emma, where's your spade? Is it my play Agnes said; Do you know you can get thread, Only four cents—John Smith's best—Just here chime in all the rest: What are trumps?

This, I think, the leading spade—Oh, I thought the jack was played! Well, that makes two points for you. One for us, did you say, Emma? How can that be? Did you trump? Have you heard about the bump Peter has upon his head? Isn't that a lovely spread? Did I take that trick? Dear me! Here strike in the other three—What are trumps?

How much better we all play Than we did! Well, I may say Once I couldn't keep my mind On the game, but now I find It's as easy as can be. Is it your deal? Let me see—No; the cards belong to me. I remember now that Kate Led the king and that the nine—Did you say the lead was mine? What are trumps?

Love Letter Dated 300 B.C.

An Egyptian love letter of the third century before Christ, written on papyrus by a priest to a priestess of the Temple of Amun-Ra, and just discovered on that of the withered breast of the woman's petrified body in the Golden Gate Park Museum, is proof that affections existed in Egypt thousands of years ago. The discovery was made by the Curator, Dr. George Barron, and his assistants, while rewrapping the mummy, which had been roughly treated in a recent move from one case to another. As yet the message has been translated only partially but Dr. Barron says a free construction of it gives the following meaning: O, Golden Poppy, long are the days when my eyes behold thee not. My heart is sick with love for thee—love that finds but little solace here among my brethren. Carefully guard our secret lest my life and thy life pay the penalty of our unrighteous love.

It was a cruel thing to say about a nice railroad whose chief aim was the speedy transportation of its passengers, but the conversation had turned to the Lightning Express and Wallace Irwin, the author, simply couldn't help it.

On the road in question, as Mr. Irwin related the story, a train stopped one day and the passengers were told that a cow had got on the track and had to be driven off.

Up the road a few miles farther the train stopped again and once more the explanation was given that a cow was on the track. Two miles, perhaps, of continuous going, and then came another stop. This time a passenger glanced wearily towards the end of the car.

Mr. Conductor, he called out in yawnful accents, could I speak to you a moment?

Certainly, answered the conductor, moving down the aisle, what is it?

Do you really mean to say, returned the passenger, in a voice that was almost a sigh, that we have caught up to that cow again?

A policeman found a negro at two o'clock one morning acting rather suspiciously in the neighborhood of some fine houses. Here, you! shouted the policeman. What are you doing here? Nothing, Well, I think you are. Explain now or I'll pull you in. Boss, said the negro, I ain't doin' nothin'. You see, I sings tenor in our church choir. Well, what's that got to do with your being here? A heap, boss—a heap. I sings tenor in our church choir an' th' man wh't sings bass is sick. Come along, said the policeman. Hol' on, boss, hol' on! Th' man what sings bass is sick an' Ise gotter take his place in th' choir; so, singing tenor as I does, Ise out here catchin' cold so I kin sing bass.

A New York poet, at the Author's Club, in Seventh Avenue, told a Conan Doyle story. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, he said, sat at dinner on his last visit here beside a lady, who asked leave to consult him about some thefts. My detective powers, he replied, are at your service, madam. Well, said the lady, frequent and mysterious thefts have been occurring at my house for a long time. Thus, there disappeared last week a motor-horn, a broom, a box of golf balls, a left riding-boot, a dictionary, and half a dozen tin pie-plates. Ah! said the creator of Sherlock Holmes, the case, madam, is quite clear. You keep a goat.

A student undergoing examination in the principles of mechanics, was asked: Why will not a pin stand on its point? He returned the following answer: In the first place, a point is defined by Euclid as that which hath no parts and no magnitude, and how can a pin stand on that which hath no parts and no magnitude? In the second place, a pin will not stand on its head, much less, therefore, will it stand on its point. Thirdly, and lastly, it will, if you stick it in hard enough.

Ah, yes, murmured Miss Screecher, after the first selection at the musicale, I have had some exciting experiences. Coming over here from New York a terrible storm arose, and I had to sing to quiet the passengers. You should have seen the heavy sea running!

And the big, ride man in the pink necktie gazed out of the window. I don't blame the sea, he muttered.

A Going Concern

Jimson bought a business through an agent as a going concern in first-class condition. After six months he failed, but took his trouble lightly. Meeting the agent some time later he said: Do you remember selling me a business as a going concern? Yes, of course I do, replied the agent. Well, said Jimson, it's gone.

A Mild Pill for Delicate Women.—The most delicate woman can undergo a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills without fear of unpleasant consequences. Their action, while wholly effective, is mild and agreeable. No violent purges or purgings follow their use, as thousands of women who have used them can testify. They are, therefore, strongly recommended to women, who are more prone to disorders of the digestive organs than men.

Mollers relied entirely upon the temperance of his diet for the re-establishment of his health. What use do you make of your physician? said the king to him one day. We chat together, sire, said the poet. He gives me his prescriptions; I never follow them; and so I get well.

He was a man who gave little and got much. Today, for instance, he had got a clothes-brush, a basin of water, a towel, and a shave, and he had given nothing at all. Tr-r-r-r! went his bedroom bell. The hotel attendant smiled sourly. This was the fourth time he had been summoned, and he didn't hurry. I thought you were never coming, exclaimed the visitor, when the attendant appeared at last. Are you nicknamed Slow-coach? No, sir, answered the attendant. They call me Billiard Cue! Billiard Cue! repeated the visitor frowning. Then an inspiration dawned. Ah! because you are a stick, I suppose? Wrong again, sir! retorted the attendant. It's because I work better with a good tip.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS USED FOR TEN YEARS

When one medicine is used in a home for a number of years it is the strongest testimony as to the value of that particular remedy. Thousands of mothers have been using no other medicine but Baby's Own Tablets for years—in fact many of them say they would have no other medicine in the house. Concerning them Mrs. Jas. H. Konkle, Beamsville, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for ten years and would not be without them as long as there are children in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The new minister in a Georgia church was delivering his first sermon. The negro janitor was a critical listener from a back corner of the church. The minister's sermon was eloquent, and his prayers seemed to cover the whole category of human wants.

After the services one of the deacons asked the old negro what he thought of the new minister.

Don't you think he offers up a good prayer, Joe?

Ah mos' suitably does, boss. Why, dat mos' Lord fo' things dat de old preacher didn't even know he had!

MORE THAN EVER Increased Capacity for Mental Labor

Many former tea and coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of tea and coffee. A Western woman writes:

"I had drunk coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely despondent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation." (Tea is just as harmful because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. It two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady."

"Then I became less despondent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength."

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Postum now comes in new, concentrated form called Instant Postum. It is regular Postum so processed at the factory that only the soluble portions are retained.

A spoonful of Instant Postum with hot water, and sugar and cream to taste, produce instantly a delicious beverage.

"I am just so delighted with the comfort Nerviline brought me that I want to talk about it all the time," writes J. C. Caughlan, of Saskatoon. "For ages I have been subject to an aching, dragging feeling at the base of the spine. When attacks came on it made my whole body ache. It appeared as if I had taken cold and a soreness developed all through my muscular system. When in Winnipeg one day a friend spoke to me of Nerviline, and I bought a 50c. bottle. That was the best half-dollar I ever spent, it did so much for me. It is hard to convince some people of what a really good medicine can do, but there will be no sceptics after they try out Nerviline. I use it for everything now. It's fine for Rheumatism and Neuralgia and all sorts of muscular pain. It cures quickly. But internally, if possible, Nerviline is even better. It cures a cramp in ten seconds, and, as for gas and upset or sour stomach, nothing could excel Nerviline. I think it should be kept in every home as a protection against sudden ills, and also to cure ills that resist other treatments."

Another cure, a great deal worse than Johnson grass or the Russian thistle, has invaded Texas. Zenol is the name of this new evil. Zenol is the double distilled concentrated essence of alcohol, and like radium and tabasco sauce, is put up in small packages. Ten drops of it will make a quart of whisky or half a gallon of cocktail, and the demand is already very heavy. It's discouraging to a reformer to learn that it is possible to take a spoonful of zenol and make a tubful of whisky, but it's encouraging to know that in spite of the inventions of evil-minded men buttermilk is rapidly taking the earth.

The Little House

In the little house where dreams come true,
Deep in the purple hill,
A bright red fire is on the hearth
Where the fairies dance at will.
The winds make music rare and low

And the heart of the little house on the hill
Asked only joys like these.

Then you passed with your golden glowing eyes,
And the gladness of your soul,
Then we knew the little house and I
Our dreams were coming true.

ONLY A ROMANCE

An Adventure That Cleared
Miss Gussie's Mind.

By LUELLA WAITE.

Miss Gussie Robertson had ridden out from the camp under the shadows of the Spanish peaks, Colorado, to do some sketching. A party of New York and Boston people were doing the camping out act in great shape. Miss Gussie was the daughter of Colonel Robertson, who was one of the party, and she was an artist of no mean ability. There was but one drawback to her complete happiness. Young Harry Caswell of Boston had imagined for a year past that he was very much in love with her. She didn't have any such feeling for him. She doubted if she ever would have, but she had joined the campers to have time to think it over and had arrived to find him very much in evidence.

It was 10 o'clock when Miss Gussie fastened her pony to a wild plum tree at the head of a gulch two miles from camp and made her way down it and alongside a brawling creek until the wall on her right rose up a full hundred feet in massive ruggedness. Then she found a comfortable seat on a rock and began to sketch the grim wall and the half dozen trees whose roots had found a foothold thereon. It was a quiet, solemn place, even with the brawling of the creek in her ears, and the girl worked for an hour, forgetful almost of where she was. Then there came a sudden and startling interruption.

While Miss Gussie was hitching her broncho to the plum tree and descending the gorge a man about thirty years old, neither good nor bad looking, but possessed of a fighting jaw, was routed out of his camp on the mountain trail above her ten miles away. Five men, all mounted, came upon him as he was saddling up and called upon him to surrender. He yelled back in defiance, and, taking cover, he stood them off for half an hour, wounding two and being himself grazed by a bullet. Then, as the survivors began to work around to his rear, the man mounted his broncho and fled down the trail at full speed. The three unwounded men pursued him, firing whenever the curving trail brought him into sight. The girl in the gorge heard the shooting and shouting, but could not locate the sounds. In her alarm she rose to her feet and was looking up and down, seeking to make out the situation, when a man and horse came over the top of the cliff above her and crashed into a tree fifty feet down. Thence they deflected into the top of a second tree, thirty feet lower, and as she gazed with wide open eyes the two bodies brought up in the creek almost at her feet. She heard the shouts of men and the clatter of horses' hoofs above, but both soon passed out of hearing.

The girl sprang from the rock and bent over the bodies in the creek. The horse was dead, but the rider lived. In a moment she had dragged him out of the creek, and as he came to he stared at her in stupid surprise. Sitting up after a moment, he dreamily asked:

"Did I come over the cliff there?"

"You did," was the answer, "and your horse has died in the creek. Those trees broke your fall."

"Much obliged to the trees. Did the sheriff's party keep on down the trail?"

"So the sheriff was after you?" she queried as she stepped back a pace.

"Yes, but give me a chance to tell my side of the story. I had a claim up on the mountain, and a bound of a man jumped it. I tried to shoot him out. That's the game in these parts, and there's nothing criminal about it. Don't be afraid of me. You belong to some camping out party, I suppose?"

"Yes, and I will ride back and get help for you."

"Don't do it. If you'll help me a bit I can get along here all right. Help me over against the wall. Thanks. Now, then, I'll want a blanket and some food, and I shall depend on you. You have the soul of an artist and therefore plenty of romance. We will stop at romance. It will be an incident for you to think of, and it will save me making long explanations to the sheriff. Shall it be as I say, or will you leave me to make a dinner for the first bear that comes along? Don't take too much trouble, and keep thinking what a romantic incident it is. No love, no matrimony—just romance!"

There was something in the reckless nature of the man that appealed to Miss Gussie. She doubted that he had told her the truth about himself, but he was temporarily helpless, and she sympathized with him. She gave him her noonday lunch and rode away to camp, returning with a blanket and further provisions. She suggested the camp again, but the man made light of his shaking up and declared he was doing very well. Give him three or four days and he would be ready to go his way.

When the girl left the gorge on this occasion it was understood that she was not to return next day, but early next morning she stole a bottle of liniment from the medicine chest, bribed the cook to put up a luncheon for two and rode away for further sketching. She found the stranger stiff and lame, but more talkative than the day before. On this occasion she saw more romance in the affair. He was a fairly good looking man. He was a victim of injustice. He had passed through a great peril. He was what she had always hungered to behold—a hero.

Miss Gussie lingered for an hour and then left the things she had brought, taking her departure to reappear next day and the next and the next. In brief, her visits were made daily for the next seven days, and each day she saw that her bad man was making an improvement. On the last day she found him waiting at the plum trees. He had furnished himself up as best he could and looked more presentable. His lameness was about gone, and the saddle from his horse was on the ground beside him.

"My dear young lady," he began, "it goes without saying that my gratitude is unbounded. Did I promise not to make you a proposal of marriage?"

"I—I don't remember," prevaricated the girl as a red flush crossed her face.

"I think I did, and I will stick to my promise. It was to be romance and nothing beyond. No love, no matrimony—just romance. I might make an exception in your case, however."

"Please don't—that is, what are you doing with my saddle?"

"Removing it to make room for mine. There, we have it. You see, I have got to borrow your horse. That will also be included in the romance."

"But I object. It is not my horse."

"Sorry, my dear girl, but I can't get away without him, and if I should be taken our little romance would be spoiled. For all your kindness I thank you, and should we meet again under different circumstances?"

Miss Gussie grabbed at the horse, but the bad man was too quick for her. He raised his hat and smiled as he rode away, and she sat down on a stone and cried. She was still crying when the sheriff and four men came galloping up and plunged down into the gorge. They were back in five minutes, and the official asked:

"Young woman, have you seen anything of a man around here this morning?"

"He rode off on my horse half an hour ago," replied the girl.

"So he lived through it?"

"But the men had no right to jump his claim when he was ill," said Miss Gussie in a spirited way.

"Jump his claim! Do you know who the feller is?"

"Not exactly, but he was very nice. He had to take my horse to get away from you."

"Hear he talking. That feller is Bob Hill, the most notorious highway robber in four states. You must have nursed him up and helped him to vanquish, and I don't know but what I shall have to hold you as accessory."

That evening it was bright moonlight, and Miss Gussie was sitting well away from the camp watching the last rays of twilight fade into night. By and by young Mr. Caswell came over and took her hand and said:

"My dear Gussie, the fourth occasion has arrived. I know I am not fit to lick up your tracks in the dust, but—"

"You can consider that we are engaged," said the girl as she thought how mean it was of the stranger not to have made her at least a tiny proposal before he gobbled her horse and rode away—just enough of a proposal to enable her to brag about it among the other incidents of camping out.

Eggs of Domestic Fowls.

The government has issued a number of bulletins with reference to the eggs of various fowls. It appears therefrom that the white of an egg is nearly seven-eighths water, the balance being albumen. The yolk is slightly less than one-half water.

The following shows how nearly alike the eggs of various domestic fowls are in respect to composition:

Hens' eggs, 50 per cent water, 16 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

Ducks' eggs, 46 per cent water, 17 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Goose eggs, 44 per cent water, 19 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Turkeys' eggs, 48 per cent water, 19 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

Protein, as is generally known, is the substance that goes to make muscle and blood. Fat, of course, is fuel for running the body machine. Thus, it will be seen, eggs, though half or nearly half water, are extremely nutritious, containing all the elements required for the building up and support of the human body.

The Giant Sequoias.

In a bulletin issued by the government attention is called to the giant sequoias, many of them more than 4,000 years old. Not only are the sequoias the oldest living things, but the tallest. Within two parks there are thirteen groves, containing more than 12,000 trees ten feet in diameter, some stretching into the air for 300 feet. We think of the big pines of the western coast old at 500 years, but at that age the sequoia is in its babyhood. No wonder man looking at these giants feels his insignificance. They had begun to grow when the Homeric epics were young. They were still young when Caesar invaded Britain. They serve to remind us that the seemingly endless glories of Athens and Rome, of Carthage and Tyre, of Spain and old Mexico, are nothing but flying leaves in the march of ages, since one tree has outlived them all—Atlanta Georgian.

Nothing Serious.

"I notice that you and your wife do a good deal of walking lately."

"Yes, I try to get her out as much as possible."

"Anything serious the matter?"

"No—nothing serious. The doctor has told her she must be careful to keep her mouth closed and breathe through her nose when she is out in the cold air."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE NEW MACKINAW.

Neat as a Pin in
This Spring Coat.

MODEL IN DARK WORSTED MIXTURE.

There is nothing dashing and picturesque about this new outing coat, which is conservatively severe and trim in style. It is made of dark worsted mixture in modified coat style, with a stitched belt passing through a buckle of the material. Pockets at the sides emphasize the outing character of the model.

Expensive New Cotton Fabrics.

Among the washable materials which are newly displayed French ratines are prominent. They are to be had in five colors, blue gray, brown gray, apricot, lavender and green. All are in double width goods and with an inwoven border are priced at $3.75 a yard. The plain colors are less. Some also have a fine black stripe, almost a hair line stripe, running through them. These cost $2.50 a yard. One of orange color and white has the effect of a shepherd's plaid. Chenille voile is another of the novelty materials, but this is not washable. It is of wool voile foundations for a chenille stripe, which is closely placed and stands up like small ridges on the goods, so that the effect is that of uncut velvet. White stripes of chenille on black and white on lavender are the only tones in which it may be procured. It is forty-five inches wide and costs $2.95 a yard. It is particularly lovely for the early spring costume.

Good to Know.

If you have ever attempted to embroider or stencil a piece of heavy burlap you have doubtless grown angry and discouraged at the tendency of the edges to ravel.

If you had taken time to overcast all the edges this could have been prevented. But it takes time. Next time you have to work with burlap in making a cushion top or curtains simply stitch the cut edges on the sewing machine. Make the stitch long and the tension loose and then sew the edge in a wavy line, keeping close to the edge all the time. It won't fray, and it won't take long to fix it this way. The stitching won't show when the cushion is sewed up or the curtains are hemmed.

A Conservative Spring Hat.

In contrast to some of the extreme styles of the moment this attractive little hat is most admirable. Its shape

Miss Jessie L. Gaynor of Kansas City, who is a writer of children's songs, is recognized as an authority on kindergarten songs. There are said to be very few writers of songs for children, many poems being published, but few of them set to music.

PRAIRIE FACTORIES.

Manufacturing Is Progressing With Great Rapidity on the Plains.

Agriculture is now taken for granted on the prairies, but what about manufacturing? The example of Winnipeg's rise in a little more than a decade to the position of fourth industrial city in the Dominion, has had the effect of kindling the imagination of conservative Canada, and now very often the remark is made that Manitoba is more like an eastern province than a member of the middle western family. But when one talks about manufacturing in Saskatchewan and Alberta, the imagination of some very intelligent people refuses to work; they shut their eyes and say, as pompous little Governor Simpson said years ago, when speaking of the possible agricultural development of that part of the Northwest Territories now called Saskatchewan, "it is impossible; it can't be done."

But it is being done. Manufacturing is progressing rapidly in both Saskatchewan and Alberta. The kinds of manufacturing plants that are being established in these two prairie provinces may be classed largely under four heads, namely, our mills, brick and clay products, lumbering with its tributary industry, planing; and steel and iron work. Generally speaking, with the exception of milling, these different forms of manufacturing have been introduced into the Middle West as the result of the strong, growing local demand for building materials. So far as an export trade is concerned, the manufacturer of the West has very little to hope for. The day may come when factories in Saskatchewan and Alberta may be able to compete with those of older districts in Canada and the United States in supplying the export markets of the world with brick and tile, doors and sashes, and iron and steel ornaments, but this article proposes to deal only with the conditions which are influencing the establishment of plants in the West now, and it may be safely said that hopes of an export trade are not a factor in the case. Too many articles of manufacture are being imported into the West at the present moment to bid anyone have hopes of a very considerable business outside the boundaries of the Dominion.—Norman Lambert, in Industrial Canada.

Geological Congress.

The organization committee to arrange for the International Geographical Congress, which is to be held in August, recently met at the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa and prepared the program for the coming congress.

The committee is composed of some of the foremost geologists and educationalists in Canada. Dr. F. D. Adams, of McGill University, was president. The gathering in August will last eight days commencing on the 7th, and thirty-six countries will be represented.

The invitation to the International Geographical Congress to hold its next meeting in Canada was given at the instance of the Federal and Provincial Governments and the Royal Society of Canada and the Canadian Mining Institute, representing in a truly national sense the great mining industries of the country.

The congress will endeavor to provide for a uniform system of mapping, nomenclature and classification of rocks, fossils and minerals and in other directions will try to broaden and extend the usefulness of geological science. A series of excursions will be arranged to enable the members to see various interesting portions of Canada that illustrate special geological features.

To assist the congress in its work the Dominion Government has granted $25,000 and the various Provincial Governments $17,000. Both Premier Borden and Hon. Frank Cochrane attended the meetings of the committee and gave the members warm assurance of their sympathy and approval. The funds already provided from various sources for the work of the congress amount to $70,000 and it is expected that this will be liberally augmented.

Offerory Would Fill Wagon.

It would be difficult to conceive of an offertory at a church service requiring a wagon to take it away. Something like this is what happened at Fort George, in the diocese of Moosonee, when the offertory was taken up. The "plate" contained seals, skins, husky boots, deer skins, mats and other articles manufactured by Indians and Esquimaux.

The Bishop of Moosonee, Right Rev. J. G. Anderson, gave an interesting account recently of the work being done among the Indians and Esquimaux in his "little diocese." At Fort George a most remarkable sight was seen. Years ago the Indians and Esquimaux were the most bitter of enemies and killed each other on sight. Last summer the bishop held a service at which both Indians and Esquimaux sat and entered into the devotion in the heartiest way. Hymns were sung first in one language and then in the other, then prayers were said in the two languages, and finally the bishop gave an address in each language.

Died at Age of 106.

James Ward, the oldest resident in Lincoln county, and of at least a large section of Ontario, died recently at the County Industrial Home at the unusual age of 106 years. Mr. Ward was born in Ireland, lived for a number of years in the United States and lived with his granddaughter at Port Dalhousie until she died last winter. Then he was placed in the home shortly after Christmas, which fact unquestionably grieved him, and it was then that he showed the first signs of physical deterioration.

Ontario's Institutions.

There are in Ontario 76 public and 51 private hospitals, nine sanitariums for consumptives, 37 refuges, 31 orphanages, three homes for incurables, three convalescent homes and 30 country houses of refuge.

ART OF THE JAPANESE.

The Charm of Their Paintings Is in Their Bold, Free Hand Strokes.

To outline briefly the peculiar methods of the Japanese artists, he uses neither oils, canvas, cardboard nor Whatman paper, but employs instead painting silk or absorbent paper, with ink applied with a well watered brush, with or without other colors. There is a fixed sequence in the strokes of his painted objects, with an established order in which these objects are introduced into the composition.

The artist rarely outlines. He prefers to paint without defining boundaries. This charming manner is known as bokkutsu. He paints upon the matting floor seated on his heels. He makes no tentative strokes. He knows in advance what is needed and paints from a well stored and trained memory. He never retouches. A stroke once made can neither be recalled nor concealed. He paints with the greatest freedom of the arm, with the brush held perpendicularly and with a stroke vigor "like the movements of a dragon," and he invests each stroke with a sentiment corresponding to the very nature of the thing painted. Nor must he hesitate or delay in the act, else the psychological moment would be gone.

He never sketches casts or living models, and Buddhist influence has always prohibited the nude in art. In painting robes or other garments there are eighteen different ways of executing the lines thereof. In sketching from nature he interprets it not photographically, but aesthetically, and omits unessential details. He paints no shadows nor conceals in chiaro oscuro anything he paints. Finally he seeks for repose or freedom from all care as the ideal condition under which to pursue his art.

Nor can it be insisted upon too strongly that the chief charm of a Japanese painting lies in the inspired strength and character of the brush stroke, which conveys a deep if unsyllabled sentiment, not only corresponding with the emotions of the artist when producing the work, but also enabling us to see with his eyes and feel with his soul. Through the magic of such stroke is reproduced the very nature of the thing represented.

Rejected Engines of War.

Certain engines of war have been rejected by civilized nations in times gone by because they were too destructive and too horrible. England has still in keeping a secret war plan of the tenth Earl of Dundonald which the authorities rejected because, while it was infallible, it was too inhuman to use by man against man. Even Louis XV. of France had backbone enough to refuse Dupre's terrible invention. If the story of this discovery be true the plan was to create by a secret process a conflagration whose intensity was but increased by water. It would burn town or fleet. Louis refused to have the secret published, and it went down to the grave with Dupre.

The Bad Soldier.

In one of the barrack rooms a soldier, not having much time to dress for guard, had cleaned his boots very well in front, but hardly at all behind. One of his chums, noticing this, said:

"Why don't you clean the backs of your boots, Pat?"

"Oh," said Pat, clapping on his helmet and hurrying out to parade, "a good soldier never looks behind."

In consequence the adjutant awarded Pat three extra parades, and a few days after his chum, seeing a great difference in his boots, remarked, "I thought a good soldier never looked behind, Pat?"

"No," replied Pat, "but the adjutant does.—London Answers.

The Adder.

A full grown adder may measure two feet in length and about six inches around the thickest part of its body. Its movements are sluggish, and, of course, the idea that it is capable of transferring its head from one extremity to the other every six months is due simply to superstition. The fact is that the tail of this snake does not terminate in a point, as with ophiophidians generally, but is stumpy and resembling the head so much that it is difficult for an observer situated at a distance of a few yards to distinguish the one from the other; hence the story of its being two-headed, the fallacy of which no intelligent observer could fail to detect.

The Workers.

The prosperity of the world depends upon the men who walk in the fresh furrows and through the rustling corn, upon those whose faces are radiant with the glare of furnaces, upon the delvers in dark mines, the workers in shops, upon those who give to the wintry air the music of the axe and upon those who wrestle with the wild waves of the raging sea.—Ingersoll.

True.

Have you ever observed that the man who frequently asks himself whether life is really worth living usually subsists on a diet and shudders at the mere thought of getting his feet damp?

The Other Place.

"I have a regular old family knock on my front door."

"We've got one inside."

SASH OF THE MOMENT.

The Narrow Effect Is
"Good This Season."

SMARTNESS OF THE LITTLE SASH.

Little sashes like the one draped about the waist of the French gown pictured are very new this season. The sash of taupe lardons matches the skirt, also of this silk and worsted material, while the coat is of silk brocade.

Buttoned boots of a dressy type accompany the little costume.

Ethel Roosevelt to Wed on a Friday.

Defying all superstition, Miss Ethel Carow Roosevelt has chosen Friday, April 4, for her wedding day. It is quite fitting that her marriage to Dr. Richard Derby should be celebrated in the little church in Oyster Bay and that the reception should follow at Sagamore Hill, the country home of Colonel and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, which in days gone by was known as the "Little White House."

The bride and bridegroom will sail for Europe the day following their wedding. Miss Cornelia Landon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutton Landon, a close friend of Miss Roosevelt, will be one of the bride's attendants.

Miss Roosevelt made her debut at a ball given at the White House in Washington when her father was president. Dr. Derby was graduated from Harvard, class of 1903. He is a son of the late Dr. Richard H. Derby.

Spring Wash Fabrics Expensive.

Many of the new washable fabrics are imported and are unusually expensive, costing on the average $2 a yard. When one has been in the habit of paying not more than 25 or 30 cents a yard for one's tub dresses this seems a large amount. These new goods, however, are very lovely and are so wide that the entire cost of material sufficient for a gown is not more than $8, and there is the merit of fashion about these materials which is not obtained in the cheaper grades. Some are of blue, pink or lavender and have the effect of dotted Swiss. The dots are small and white. There is a deep white border on the goods in any color. Brocade ratine is also new. This is $4 a yard and is serviceable for a traveling costume. It is light brown in tone, and the all over patterns are quite small. The former material is, of course, very sheer, while the latter is decidedly thick.

The Season's Favorite Colors.

The names of the new colors are all more or less associated with the personages that the Balkan war has brought into prominence. Many of the names are derived from the titles of the princesses of the countries now engaged in conflict in the Balkan territory. Among these shades blue in its various tints is the most conspicuous:

Bonne Mine (vapor blue),
Budapest blue (midblue),
Danube blue (midblue),
Wedgwood blue (grayish blue),
Marie Elizabeth gold,
Princess Stephanie (plum color),
Princess Louise (brown),
Yolanda green (reseda),
Yvonne (light blue),
Sallard rose,
Olga (regina wistaria),
Funeral blue (sky blue),
Eugenie (orchid).

Cleaning Carpet Sweeper.

A good way to clean a carpet sweeper is to remove the brush, and after rubbing off all the hairs and lint rub it well with kerosene. Let the brush remain in the air until the odor has evaporated. The sweeper will leave the carpets and rugs looking much brighter after this treatment.

AUTOMOBILES

With the advent of 1913 many new cars are noted on the Canadian markets. Both new and old show many refinements and improvements over 1912.

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK builders have made good their claim to a country built car.

A car built for our none-to-good Canadian roads.

A car fitted with all the latest improvements.

The prices are moderate.

Careful comparison is invited with the higher priced cars and especially with cheap cars whose makers base their extravagant claims of present worth on what their cars have not, instead of what they have.

We also have some excellent values in rebuilt cars repainted and overhauled.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

Mrs. Lafferty returned Monday afternoon from the Calgary hospital considerably improved, but still enduring some pain from her broken ankle.

Many people have visited the Indian dances on the Blackfoot reserve the past week. The sun dance is expected to start within a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCammon returned last week from their trip to Texas and expect to leave to-day for Edmonton, where they will make their future home.

Messrs. Johnston and Heffernan, the former a popular member of the staff of S. A. Hall, while the latter had charge of the Hardware department of the Gleichen Trading Co. left on Tuesday for their homes in the east. They intend journeying via the Great Lakes and their many friends while regretting their departure, wish them a pleasant journey and continued health and success.

Manager Johnston of the Namaka Opera House has sent an ozonogram to the CALL that "there is to be great doings at Namaka to-morrow evening and night—Friday, June 14. To start with there will be a baseball match between the Harwood Whirlwinds and the Namaka Giants which is expected to be the greatest event of the season. After the defeat (very much?) of the Whirlwinds a dance will be given in honor of the defeated champions and a prize awarded the most handsome hard-time costume.

The Al. G. Barnes circus has come and gone. It arrived late but started its parade at noon going through the principal streets of the town and was witnessed with pleasure by a large number of spectators. The two performances were well attended and none went away disappointed for the performance was of the finest nature, being the best of the kind ever seen in Gleichen. The performers both human and animal filling their different parts to perfection the performing seals especially, receiving much applause. The side-show was well attended, but it is said that some of our town sports got rather a surprise in some of the acts being made participants therein much against their will.

The funeral of Mrs. C. H. Smith took place on Thursday last, interment being in the Queenstown cemetery. A large number of friends and acquaintances being present to pay their last respects. The deceased has been a resident of Queenstown for the past six years and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoerle, where she made her home. She was 27 years of age and was born in Lis-towel, Ont. She had been ill for a long time with rheumatism, and suffered terribly for five weeks previous to her death. Sincere sympathy is extended to the sorrowing parents and relatives in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. Clark arrived in Gleichen last week from India on a trip around the world and spent several days visiting her former friend, Mrs. Williams. When seen by a reporter at the A. G. Barnes circus Thursday Mrs. Clark said she had come to the circus to see the difference between such performance in Canada and the many other countries she had visited, but the one thing that interested her most was the Blackfoot Indians. The Indians here she said in many ways were the opposite to the Indians of India. The most striking feature to her was in their dress and she referred to the heavy blankets the Blackfoot wore on a hot day, while she said in India they discarded all clothing but never their jewelry.
